Why Equine Therapy?

- Enhances Performance
- Creates Close Bond
- Relaxes and Reduces Stress
- Strengthens Trust
- Helps Prevent Muscle Injuries
- Increases Range of Motion
- Increases Overall Flexibility
- Happy & Healthy Horse

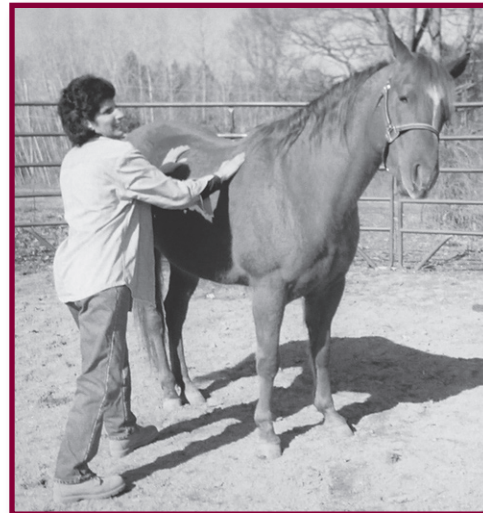

Signs to look for:

Your horse may need therapy if he/she exhibits some of the following:

- Overall Stiffness
- Lead Resistance
- “Cold” Back
- Refusal to go forward or work
- Short striding
- Bad Disposition
- Lack of Flexibility
- Nervous

Benefits:

- Improves overall circulation of blood and lymph fluids allowing oxygen and nutrients to be carried to all parts of the body
- Relieves muscle tightness, restriction and pain by loosening the muscles allowing them to relax and move more freely increasing their Range of Motion
- Helps repair damaged nerves by supplying blood and oxygen giving them a chance to heal and prevent muscle atrophy
- Frees muscle adhesions and improves scar tissue allowing muscle fibers to return to normal position
- Flushes out metabolic wastes that cause muscle stiffness and soreness
- Improves overall disposition
